

IV Conference AISSA#under40

New frontiers and challenges for sustainability of Agro-forestry-pastoral systems and food safety

Fisciano (SA) - July 12-13, 2023

University of Salerno, DIFARMA, Agriculture Section

First Newsletter

Dear Colleagues,

After the previous editions organized by University of Padua in 2019, Sassari in 2021 and Bolzano in 2022, It is a great honor for the University of Salerno host the fourth annual Conference of AISSA#under40 on July 12-13, 2023 in the Campus of Fisciano (few kilometers from Salerno), aimed to enhance the efforts of young researchers in the different subjects related to agriculture and food sciences.

The AISSA#under40 Conference is a great opportunity for networking in multidisciplinary areas related to Agro-Forestry-Pastoral, connecting researchers from different scientific areas, promoting integration and cooperation among institutes.

Geopolitical crises, climate changes, and financial speculation caused a rising of energy costs, fertilizers and raw materials, with negative impact on the agribusiness supply chains. In this challenging scenario, research in agriculture can significantly contribute to innovation and technological progress.

Since EU Agricultural Policy is aimed at developing and implementing novel strategies for global food safety through international cooperation, the conference topic will be focused on: “New frontiers and challenges for sustainability of Agro-forestry-pastoral systems and food safety”.

In this critical context, scientists joining AISSA can play a crucial role in steering and promoting innovation in agriculture. Young researchers are therefore encouraged to join AISSA Conference with novel and original contributions related to sustainability, resilience, and food safety. Program and scientific sessions will include oral communications, posters and papers.

Conference address: Università degli Studi di Salerno, Campus di Fisciano – Via Giovanni Paolo II, 132, 84084 Fisciano (SA)

Date: July 12-13, 2023

Who can join AISSA#under40 Conference

Conference is mainly addressed to researchers under 40 years old. PhD students and Post-docs will have reserved sessions where discuss their own work. Money prizes will be assigned to the best papers. Fees and deadlines will follow shortly in the second Newsletter.

Dear Colleagues,

As reported in the first newsletter, the fourth AISSA#under40 Conference will be held in the University Campus of Fisciano (University of Salerno) on July 12-13, 2023.

After the previous editions organized by University of Padua in 2019, Sassari in 2021 and Bolzano in 2022, It is a great honor for the University of Salerno host the fourth annual Conference of AISSA#under40.

Conference topic will be focused on: “New frontiers and challenges for sustainability of Agro-forestry-pastoral systems and food safety” and it will be open to scientists working in agriculture field and veterinary medicine.

The main subjects are:

- Techniques to protect and enhance biodiversity and natural resources;
- Climate change: innovative strategies for mitigation and adaptation;
- Circular economy: innovative and sustainable approaches to enhance food products and protect natural resources;
- Digital techniques for sustainability and safety food production;
- Biotechnological and microbiological innovations for agribusiness;
- Quality, safety, healthiness and sustainability of food productions;
- Sustainability in economics, environment, society, and ecosystem services

Young researchers are encouraged to join the Conference with contributions related to the subjects above mentioned, highlighting new promising and interesting perspectives aimed at promoting sustainability of the Agro-Forestry-Pastoral systems and food safety.

Contributions not directly linked to the specified subjects will be also evaluated.

Conference program includes 3 scientific sessions, each one introduced by an invited Speaker. The fourth session will deal other research activities, such as publications, science communication, reform of Italian University system, projects). Conference will includes poster sessions and time breaks to promote networking and discussions. Official languages are Italian and English.
